Hi All,

In case you haven't seen it, I thought I would share this link. I do think there is a good point about the time it would take the DA's office to review body cam footage before every charging decision, due to the time and resources that would involve. But I think there could be some middle ground between watching every time cameras are used and not watching them at all. There should be some quantifiable middle ground, maybe for more significant charges, or a certain classification, etc.

Enjoy the weekend!
