No, there isn't actually a volcano here. I was just having fun with the little icons.

This is not currently a path. I would like to suggest extending the Southwest Commuter Trail across Monona Bay next to the tracks which would take you to Lakeside Street and perhaps far beyond. Possibly as far as Oregon and/or it could loop all the way to its other end more directly than the Capital City Path.

I'd like to see the bike path continue here, crossing Monona Bay next to the train tracks. Sort of an express route to the Lakeside neighborhood on the other side. And it would shave minutes off of my commute time. For those entering our fine town on John Nolan, Mr. Mayor, it might look mighty impressive that Madison is so bike friendly that we have paths visible to either side.
