

Status Quo

Essentially, infrastructure decisions are made by engineers, not planners, and it is no one's job to think about the entire transportation system.

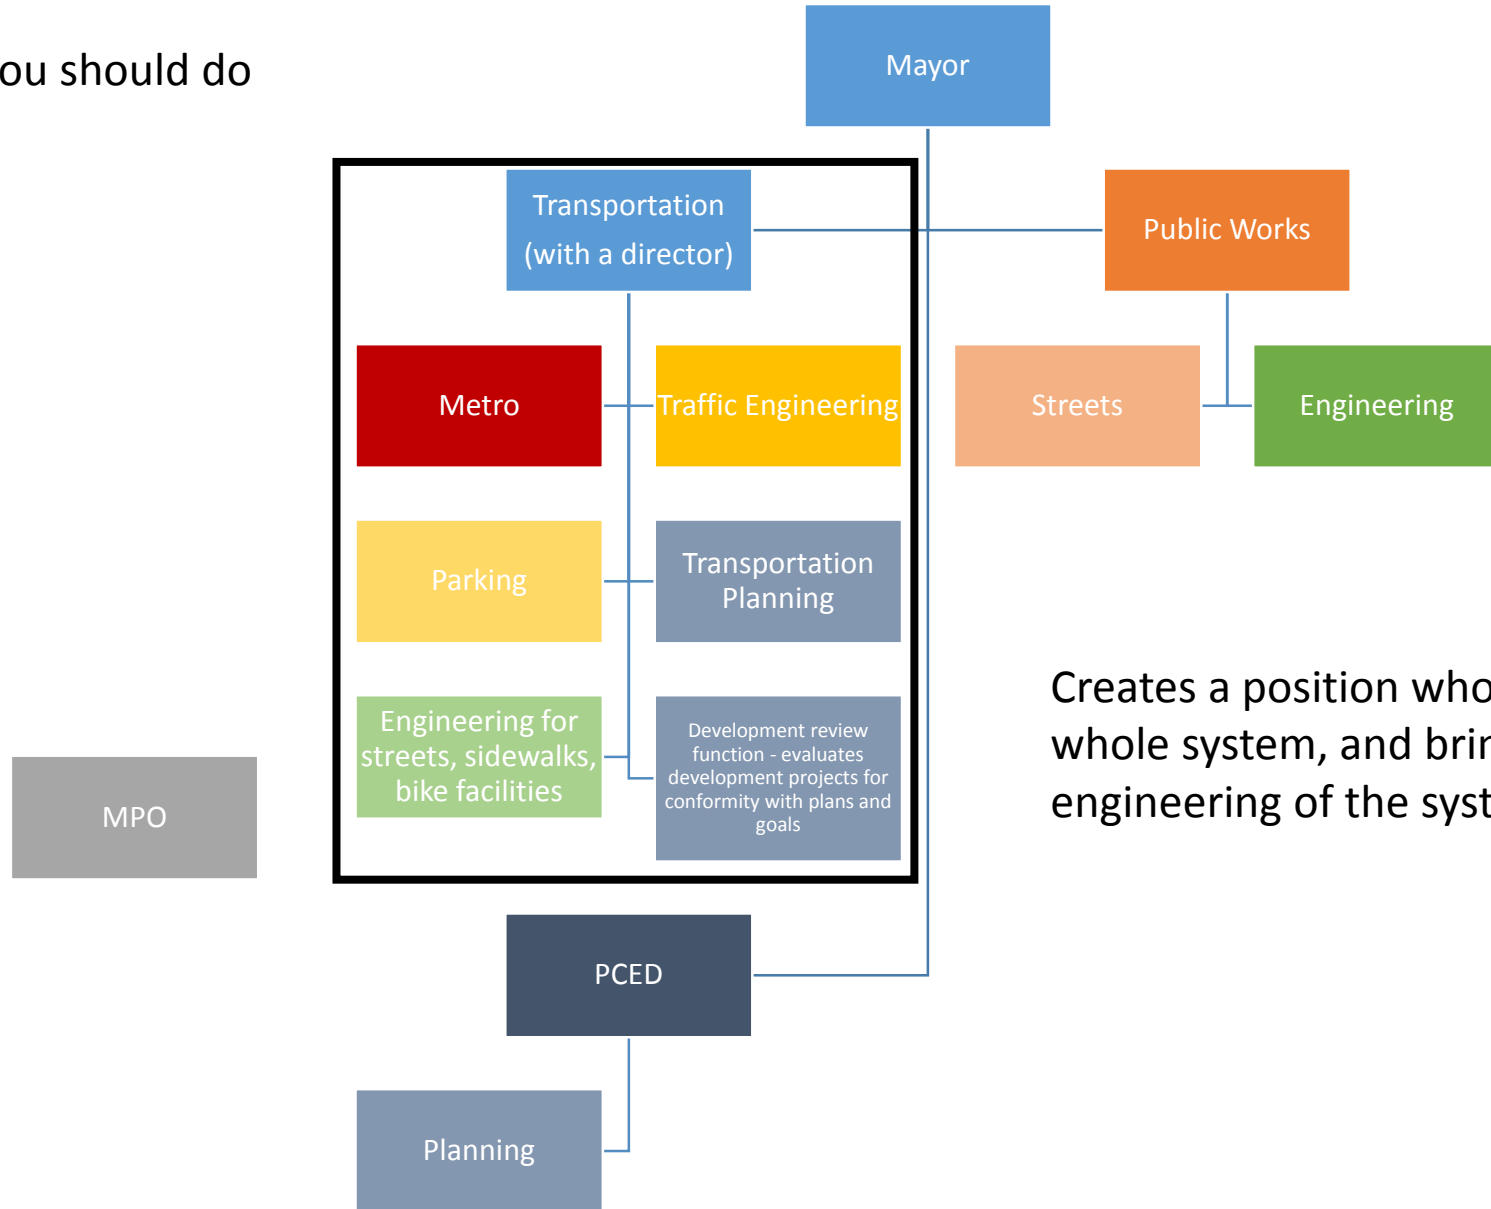

Proposal

Creates a “Department of Transportation” but doesn’t change the lines of reporting, doesn’t change who’s planning projects, and it’s still no one’s job to think about the whole system.

What you should do

Creates a position whose job it is to think about the whole system, and brings both the planning and engineering of the system under that position.
