These "trees" shed numerous amounts of needles into our garden and decorative stone areas. According to the arborists, these "trees" will keep growing taller, and even at the height they are now, the "trees" are aesthetically unsightly to look at and extremely out of place in this section of homes.

If the "trees" were originally planted for privacy, and had been kept at a lower height of 8', 10' or 12', we feel this would accomplish that purpose, still provide plenty of privacy and be more aesthetically pleasing.

The lower height would still provide more than enough nesting areas etc for the birds. You can see by one of the attached photos, they were always trimmed back in the past.
