

To Whom it May Concern,

I have worked with Krissie for about two and a half years. During that time, I have come to value her as an asset to the team. She started off as a bartender and had such a great connection with guests. Not only that, but hard work and a keen eye for detail have helped her become a manager.

She has been very open about her past from the day she stepped in the door. To this day, It is hard for me to imagine the person she is now as the person she has described herself from those times. All I know her as is a dedicated and hard working employee, wonderful mother, respected manager, and a friend.

Everyone has a past. Sometimes we stumble through life instead of glide. She has made the most of her mistakes and actively helps others facing those situations. I would trust her with anything and everything. Please consider appealing.
