

I + Felt like a punch to the gut to see the sign in front of my apartment building at 501 N Whitney Way announcing plans to demolish it for the proposed high rise apartment project. Does anyone on the planning commission care how disruptive it is to evict tenants of a perfectly fine livable building, which is one of the very few (almost) affordable apartments in this area? Not only that, but this involves considerable financial expense in order to move, not to mention inconvenience. Many of us including myself are older, and have lived here for several years with no plans to move. I highly doubt that any of us will be able to afford the new place that is proposed, or the building that is in construction next door. Is it part of the design to remove working people from this part of town? - Very upset and disillusioned by this proposal.

Sincerely, Thomas Calden
