Online Job Search Tips:

Look at Individual Companies' Websites -

If you know of a company in the industry you want to work in, check out their webpage. Look for the keywords “Jobs”, “Careers” or “Employment”

Use synonyms when looking for jobs. Instead of always typing in “Office Assistant” try using “Administrative Assistant” or “Office Clerk”

Make the subject line the same as the job posting title when sending an email. This lets potential employers know what you are interested in and prepares them when they open the email.

Watch Out for Scams!

Be careful about Job Scams. If you get an email offering you a job that's too good to be true, it probably is.

You will see common trends in most Job Scam emails:

1. They don't use your name, instead they call you “Applicant” or “To Whom It May Concern” or just say “Hello”.
2. They request a credit check or other personal information before you've been offered a position.
3. There are misspellings or grammar errors.
4. They require you to pay for software or training before you can start at the job.

If you get an offer from a company and you aren't sure it's real, Google the company to get their phone number (do not use the contact information in the email) and call to verify the position, or

Why Can't I Get To The Next Page?

The image shows a registration form with several fields. At the top, a yellow warning icon and message state: "Account cannot be created! Password must contain at least one each of the following: number, letter and special character such as @, ! or >." Below this, there are two main sections: "Create Account" and "Registered Users". The "Create Account" section has a red asterisk next to the "Email Address" field, which contains "ctc@denverlibrary.org". The "Registered Users" section has fields for "Email Address", "SSN - No Dashes Please (999999999)", and "Confirm SSN". Two red callout boxes provide instructions: one points to the red asterisk and says "Make sure you filled in every field with a red asterisk (*) beside it.", and the other points to the error message and says "Look for text at the top of the page telling you what you missed."
