Hello,

The approach of another new year means it is time to renew your membership with the National Association of Local Boards of Health (NALBOH) - the only association committed exclusively to strengthening boards of health. As the current President of NALBOH, I am pleased with the progress we made in 2007 to continue growing in our ability to improve public health at the national, state and local levels, and to empower boards of health to improve their communities. As I look ahead to 2008, I am especially excited about the many positive changes occurring within our organization and the enhanced services that will be available to members. Here are just a few examples:

- NALBOH has added several talented people to the team and has created a new position which is focusing solely on making membership even more beneficial to you and your entire board of health
- All educational and training materials are being updated and will ultimately become available in more member-friendly formats, including online
- The NALBOH website is being redesigned from top to bottom in an effort to make useful information more readily available to members

As a reminder, just by being a member, you and your entire board of health are entitled to receive:

- NALBOH NewsBrief - the only newsletter written just for boards of health
- Reports, trends, and statistics that help boards of health make wise decisions
- Alerts about emerging public health issues and strategies to address them
- Updates on pending legislation that will affect public health policies
- Publications and training materials designed specifically for boards of health
- Discounted registration fees for NALBOH's 2008 Annual Conference (Madison, Wisconsin on July 22-24) – Mark your calendar!
- Information about grant opportunities that can strengthen your board

I also want to encourage you and your board members to become actively involved with NALBOH and its events and activities. By participating on one of the many important NALBOH committees, you can help shape the direction of public health at a national level. By attending the annual conference in Madison or the Ned E. Baker Lecture in Bowling Green, Ohio you can gain valuable knowledge and develop useful relationships with funders, decision-makers and other board of health members from across the country. And, by sharing your local successes and challenges, you will have more influence on changing the future of public health for all because NALBOH represents the grassroots of public health at a national level.

If you thought your NALBOH membership was a great value in 2007, you are going to be very pleased with what you'll receive in 2008. Please renew today!

Sincerely,

John Gwinn
NALBOH President
