MADISON PARKS 2017 CALENDAR

Thank you!
Thank you to everyone who submitted photos for our inaugural edition of the Madison Parks Calendar. All proceeds from the sale of this calendar are provided to the Madison Parks Foundation. Renewing our legacy.

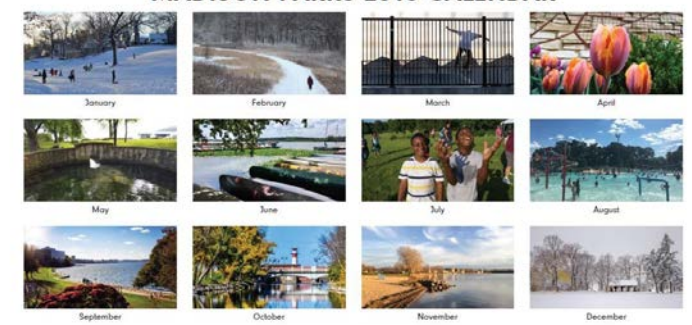

ON THE COVER
Our cover photo by Beth Semler shows a European honey bee collecting nectar from the yellow lotus flower. The lotus bee is the most common bee used for producing honey and is the single most important pollinator. Following the lead of the White House, Madison City Council declared the Madison Food Parks Council to establish the Pollinator Protection Trust Fund. The trust fund acknowledges the importance of pollinators to the food system and community health, and addresses their impacts on a local level.
