Dear Alder Arvina Martin, dear Renee Callaway, dear Sean Malloy,

I currently live on the 4700-4900 block of Sheboygan Avenue. It has been brought to my attention that the City of Madison Transportation Commission is considering removing street parking on the block.

I personally know many of my neighbors who are elderly and/or disabled. They depend heavily on taxi and delivery services for all their basic needs. I am worried that removing street parking would greatly impact their ability to safely move in and out of the apartment buildings on the street, and would hinder the possibility for food and supply delivery, which they rely on every day.

I have worked since August with the e-Commerce department at Metcalfe's, the only supermarket in the area that still delivers directly to the customer's door. Without the ability to safely park on the street, Metcalfe's would have to remove several apartment buildings from their delivery route. Many elderly or disabled neighbors who live alone would be left without any possibility for weekly groceries.

I hope that the Transportation Commission will be attentive to the comfort and safety of these residents when they evaluate their project for street parking on Sheboygan Avenue.

I would love to hear more about the project and the positive impact you think it could make on the neighborhood. Please feel free to contact me at this email address directly.

Thank you very much for your attention, I wish you and everybody on the Commission a beautiful day.

Best,

Léna Remy-Kovach
