Standards for Variance

The Zoning Board of Appeals shall not grant a variance unless it finds that the applicant has shown the following standards are met:

1. There are conditions unique to the property of the applicant that do not apply generally to other properties in the district.

House has furthest setback on face block by 1'4". House is only 1 1/2 story but the lot is not too small, rather because of how the house is placed, there isn't a reasonable way to put an enclosed porch that are common to the area.

2. The variance is not contrary to the spirit, purpose, and intent of the regulations in the zoning district and is not contrary to the public interest.

Maintains frontyard development alignment. The rhythm of the property matches the inconsistent rhythm of the block face. There is not uniformity and variance will not make it worse.

3. For an area (setbacks, etc) variance, compliance with the strict letter of the ordinance would unreasonably prevent use of the property for a permitted purpose or would render compliance with the ordinance unnecessarily burdensome.

Would like to expand usability and functionality plus add value consistent with the neighborhood as living in home for 20 years. I'd only like to build it 5'0" deep but that is not functional.

4. The alleged difficulty or hardship is created by the terms of the ordinance rather than by a person who has a present interest in the property.

I didn't build it, or subdivide it. I'm just a steward of it today, trying to do the right thing. The ordinance prohibits this structure.

5. The proposed variance shall not create substantial detriment to adjacent property.

The impacts on sunlight and rain will be no different than what exists today.

6. The proposed variance shall be compatible with the character of the immediate neighborhood.

The structure maintains window and door size and character. The proportions are maintained and true to historical intention. Approx 50% of homes have enclosed porches in the same style and type on this street.
