Personal Statement:

I view service on the City of Madison Common Council as an opportunity to contribute to the community I was born and raised in. First, I spent the entirety of my childhood in and around the 13th District. I credit the tightly knit communities of Dudgeon-Monroe and Nakoma for teaching me the importance of civic engagement and community organization. I left Madison upon graduating from West High School and spent 11 years on the East Coast in Washington D.C. (1 year) and New York City (10 years) but never considered myself anything other than a Madisonian. I have come to know that most Madisonians carry that identity with them no matter how far-flung their travels or adopted homes may be. My wife Shira and I returned to Madison in 2009, I attended Marquette University Law School and instead of locating in Milwaukee, preferred to reside in Madison and make the daily commute. We are committed to this City and our local community.

Second, through my legal practice, I see the day to day importance of Alder's constituent engagement and the deliberative function of the Common Council. I often advise clients to seek out their Alder when issues in their community arise. I have admired the seriousness with which Alders approach their duties when reviewing proposals or applications before the Council. I credit those who serve in this capacity for their earnest commitment to our City and their communities. I wish to serve and contribute my voice and abilities to that process.

Third, I hope to have the opportunity to engage more deeply with my immediate community and help to shape the broader City's priorities through service. The role of Alder is a first line member of city government. The Common Council is the intersection of hyper local concerns and our City process. I would like to contribute to the robust engagement between our residents and the City that is a hallmark of the Madison tradition.

I plan to run for Alder for District 13 in the Spring 2019 election.
