Hello Transportation Commission,

On a related note for how we prioritize safe streets projects, I think it's important to consider where citizen-led traffic calming can be enabled. The budget (and to an extent, political will) simply doesn't allow the city to deliver enough of these projects. Establishing clear and reasonable guidelines that allow a constant stream of citizen-led projects to be pursued can lighten the load on the city. Additionally, I think this would build a lot of trust and goodwill for residents on how they view city processes.

Thanks for your consideration,
Ben Noffke
