

To Whom it May Concern,

I have worked with Krissie at Vintage for 2.5 years. In that time I've come to know her as a great person and is extremely trustworthy. Whenever I have an issue at work that needs to be discussed, I seek out Krissie to discuss it with because of how well I know she can handle any situation.

Outside of work, I have spent some time with Krissie as well. I have seen how she interacts with her daughter, Samantha, and know that she is a wonderful mother. Whenever Krissie brings up anything about her past I can't even begin to picture it. The person she talks about does not even come close to resembling the person and friend I know today. Krissie can be trusted with anything, and I believe her appeal should be strongly considered.
