Thanks for the update. As staff to the city's sustainability committee the committee has had two presentations and would like to see this move forward as it had a lot of potential to help move more properties to do energy efficiency projects especially multi-family residential.

Is there something the committee/ city can do to encourage the county to act? Write a letter, pass a resolution in support?

Jeanne

Thanks Michael.

Hi Jeanne:

As Michael indicates, our Corp Counsel had some questions and met with the PACE team to discuss them. Richard Greenlee in Corp Counsel met with Lynn and Jason and indicated that he was encouraged by their responses to his questions but that he had some additional questions re: collection and payment of special assessments and was going to submit further questions to them. I don't know where that has gone, but have a call in to Rich to find out.

There are a number of parties here in the county who are interested in seeing this move forward.

I would be interested in attending any meeting between the City and County on this topic.

Thanks,
Lisa

Hi Jeanne--

The point person on PACE in Dane County is Supervisor Patrick Miles. At a meeting I attended a couple of weeks ago, Miles said that he is ready to push PACE forward. He no longer chairs the Workforce and Economic Development Commission, however the resolution to allow Dane County to participate in the PACE WI commission may go through the Environment + Natural Resources committee chaired by Patrick Downing. I don't know if Dane County Corporation Counsel has signed off on it. I'm cc'ing John Hochkammer and Jason Stringer on this e-mail in case they have more current information. They attended the same meeting with Supvrs. Miles and Downing at the City County building two weeks ago.

Another person you might contact is Lisa MacKinnon, who is also cc'ed on this e-mail.

Below is Patrick Miles' contact information. --Michael

Michael – do we know where PACE is at with Dane County? Do we know what their concerns are? If we were to ask someone from Dane county (or several people) to come to a meeting who would those people be?)
