Dear Transportation Policy Board,

As a regular user of the Capital City Trail, I would like to see a speed limit set on congested parts of the path, like the section from Machinery Row south to the Olin Park area. The speed that electric bikes in particular can achieve is dangerous to other cyclists not to mention pedestrians.

If setting a speed limit is not an option, then more signage to encourage safe speeds and passing etiquette, especially near curves or intersections (along John Nolen at North Shore Drive!) would be helpful.

Thank you,
