Summary

At its meeting of June 15, 2022, the Urban Design Commission received a presentation from Girl Scout Troops #1477 and #1952 regarding low-embodied carbon materials in Madison building projects. Registered and speaking in support were the Girl Scout Troops #1477 and #1952.

The Girl Scout Troops gave a presentation on the importance of using low-embodied carbon materials in building projects to address our growing climate crisis. They provided a descriptive pamphlet, and links to the Carbon Leadership Forum and a music video they created.

The Commission thanked them for their very important and informative presentation. A few members mentioned looking forward to having these girls join their profession.

Action
