

FORECAST
RADAR

68° F

- Trending
- New! PrepZone iPhone app
- Campaign Fact Finder
- Baseball playoffs
- Dining guide
- Expanded weather
- U.S. crime stats

Photo gallery: Park(ing) Day

Local artist Tyler Mackie received a grant from the Madison Arts Commission to lay sod over parking spots and claim them for Park(ing) Day, a nationwide project designed to draw attention to urban green space. On the temporary park spaces, people relaxed on plush chairs, listened to solo saxophone music and signed a petition to fund local vegetables in school lunches.

Next photo »

Seen: Park(ing) Day Will Turnbull makes Origami birds

Buy this photo Metal sculptor Will Turnbull makes paper Origami birds in a plastic tent at Park(ing) Day, where artists transform city parking spaces into temporary parks. CRAIG SCHREINER — State Journal

Seen: Park(ing) Day silkscreen board

Buy this photo A silkscreen board at a booth at Park(ing) Day in Madison, where artists transform parking places into temporary parks. CRAIG SCHREINER — State Journal

-
-
-

Seen: Park(ing) Day Elizabeth Prose knitter

Buy this photo Knitter and spinner Elizabeth Prose at Park(ing) Day, where artists transform metered parking spots into temporary parks. CRAIG SCHREINER — State Journal

Seen: Park(ing) Day Michael Brenneis, Geoffrey Brady

Buy this photo Musicians Michael Brenneis, left, and Geoffrey Brady play a variety of what Brenneis calls "thrift shop items" including hubcaps, pots, pans, ashtrays and bells at Park(ing) Day, where artists transform parking spaces into temporary parks. CRAIG SCHREINER — State Journal

Loading...

Seen: Park(ing) Day general

Buy this photo A carpet of sod covers city parking spaces on Atwood Avenue for Park(ing) Day, where artists transform parking spaces into temporary parks. CRAIG SCHREINER — State Journal

 Loading...

Seen: Park(ing) Day Lance Owens, John Hitchcock

Buy this photo Printmakers Lance Owens and John Hitchcock silkscreen T-shirts for people at Park (ing) Day, where artists transform city parking spaces into temporary parks. CRAIG SCHREINER — State Journal

