Colin, Can you help Candy?

Candy, Colin can help you with your questions as well as pass along your comments to the plan commission. Additionally, FYI, I believe the property owner will be at SHNA this evening at 7pm.

Alder Furman, I do not see a landscape plan for the proposal for 4918 LMD that identifies the existing trees and how they will be protected, and which ones are proposed for removal, in addition to the mound. Is that not a requirement anymore? Also, who is the chairperson of the Plan Commission?

"This proposal is scheduled to go to Plan Commission on Dec 9. Zoning Staff recommendation should be available on Dec 4.

Good afternoon Jeff and Arlene,

Your email was forwarded to me from Richard at the DNR.

All known burial sites in Wisconsin are protected under State Statute 157.70 – please see this link for additional information. <https://wisconsinhistory.org/Records/Article/CS15239> In brief, burial sites are divided into two categories – catalogued and uncatalogued. Cataloguing a burial site awards the site additional protections. In order to complete ground-disturbing work within the boundary of a burial site, owners and/or contractors must submit forms and plans (a Request to Disturb form) to our office at the State Historic Preservation Office to get our authorization or permit. Our office also maintains the boundaries of these sites.

The Panther Mound at 4918 Lake Mendota Drive has portions that are both catalogued and uncatalogued. The mound itself is catalogued, providing it with the highest of protection, while the surrounding area is uncatalogued. The area that the house that will be demolished is within the uncatalogued portion. The property owners and the contractor are aware of the site and the law. They have the boundaries of the mound and have been including them on their architectural site plans. They have already submitted a Request to Disturb form for this work. They are required to have an archaeological monitor on-site during any ground-disturbing activities. Since the site is challenging due to the mound, we have continued contact in case any additional issues come up during construction.

I hope that helps. Please let me know if you have any additional questions,

All,

The Wisconsin Historical Society is the correct state agency to work with on such projects. I forwarded your concerns on to them yesterday, and was informed that the landowners are working with WHS, and are aware of the cultural and legal requirements associated with the mound.

The mound itself is catalogued, meaning it has already been surveyed and is protection under Wisconsin's Burial Sites law (Wis.Stats. 157.70).

I hope this information is helpful. If you have further concerns, I would direct you to the Wisconsin Historical Society (<https://www.wisconsinhistory.org/Records/Article/CS15239>).

This message was sent to me from the adjacent neighbor to 4918. The photos of the panther effigy & plaque were photographed today.

Is there any research currently in process to verify where this effigy would exist in relation to the proposed demolition & building of a residence at 4918 LMD? Are there any other agencies, dealing with native artifacts that should be contacted?

This long effigy Mound extends into the adjacent lakefront property also

The panther mound on the lake side portion of this lot is 119 feet long and 30 feet wide. It's overgrown with weeds and hard to determine the exact borders. It is important to have a native american representative identify the boundaries and have a surveyor add this to the building site plan.

Are you aware of this mound issue with 4918 LMD?

Here are pictures of the mound and its historical marker. It's very close to the current house and covers a great deal of the backyard.

(Aaron – I did a reply all but it doesn't seem to pick up the cc for Spring Harbor Planning – can you forward? thx)

I received notice of a land use application submitted for 4918 LMD. This is the property Herman raised concerns about, in regards to the effigy mound that's on the property.
