The Genesis Plat is located on the east side of Madison adjacent to USHW 12& 18 at Agriculture Drive. The subdivision is proposed as 16 industrial lots. The resolution for approval is for a Future Phase Contract, which will allow for the City to sign off on the plat and allow the developer to get the plat recorded. No construction will be included in this contract. The Developer has requested that the City construct the improvements necessary for this development with an assessable street project.

The City will be preparing an estimate of the costs to construct the public infrastructure as part of an assessable project, scheduled for late summer of 2011. A budget amendment will be introduced to Council on March 1, 2011 and go to the Board of Estimates on March 7, 2011 to allow for the City to construct this project in 2011.

After the plat is recorded the City will move forward with an assessable project to install the street, utilities and other public infrastructure. The approval of the plans, specifications and schedule of assessments is tentatively scheduled for May of 2011. The assessments for Trade Winds Parkway and Genesis Plat improvements will be 100% assessable to the Developer. The WisDOT has also conditioned that the approval of the development will require lengthening of the south bound USH 51 left turn lane an additional 250ft to provide additional turn lane, which is warranted with the increased traffic that will be generated by this development. The City will include this work in the contract for the road and public infrastructure improvements. The cost for the turn lane improvements will be 100% assessable, which will be an area assessment based on the properties that will benefit by this improvement.

Due to elimination of high speed rail and the addition of the Research Products parcel located at 204 S Ingersoll Street, which the City is currently working to acquire, the City is having the Central Park Master Plan revised to reflect the current situation. These modifications have changed of scope of the original Project Agreement, which was for design and construction. This resolution is to approve a new Project Agreement for Design.
