

Although I am not directly affected by Plan B's sound effects, I know how annoying a thumping base can be from noisy neighbors. I don't think that adding a bit of insulation (solar panels) would be a serious accommodation for Plan B. The sound proofing could cut down both on noise and electrical bills. I am sure some not very expensive compromise can be reached.

Jim McGonigle