Timothy,
I guess I never answered your question just file the application.

Chris,

The just-completed staff report is attached for your information and for whatever purpose it might serve you and your client going forward.

Based on your message below, should I have the Plan Commission refer (place on hold) your demolition permit application to a future meeting or have them place it on file on Monday night, formally ending consideration of this application? Referral keeps it alive in case demolition of this property comes back up within the next 6-12 months or so; placing it on file means this application is done and any future demolition permit request for this property would need a new application and fee. Please advise as soon as possible so that I may instruct the Plan Commission accordingly.

Regards,
TIM

After some long disgruntled discussions with our clients they decided to NOT go forward with the demo permit. They want to either repair as is or do a addition to the back.. I am currently getting plans drafted for both. They do not know which way they are going due to costs.
