Subject: Otto's proposed outdoor seating

I enjoy Ottos and am very glad they are a part of my neighborhood, however, I have been bothered the past few years over amplification of their music. Given the proximity to residential homes and that the music is during the work week, can we come up with a plan that keeps the volume at a measurable, reasonable level and involves a reasonable end time? I think it was supposed to end at 7:30 and that's reasonable, but last year they were letting it go much longer, and as I said, louder. Originally it was just one night a week, now it's three. That's a bit much.

I would be opposed to any permanent outdoor speakers. The sound in that corridor really travels and bounces off the buildings across the street.

Thank you.
