To Whom It May Concern,

I recommend the Progress Center for Black Women Proposal for Cultivating Transformational Leadership.

After growing up in Chicago, and living in Madison, Denver, and Atlanta, I have increasingly become aware of how important strong community leadership is to the success of local neighborhoods and cities at large.

Director Ms. Sabrina Madison will lead and succeed in creating change agents of huge magnitude at the community level. She and the Progress Center for Black Women team will help communities identify resources, leadership skills and knowledge to assert themselves to be heard and represent their communities at the city and county level to address specific issues.

The Progress Center for Black Women has developed an undeniably comprehensive and cohesive plan to empower individuals to strategically utilize assets within the community to support the very communities they live in and to help them thrive.

Ms. Sabrina Madison will collaboratively foster individuals to create collective impact within their communities. She will truly cultivate transformational leadership.
The outcome will far exceed any and all expectations.

To the Power of GIRL™,
