Thanks a lot. I am on the list but unfortunately out of town. I wanted to suggest that a training workshop and or master craftsman list or other educational means by which homeowners could learn how to work on their own windows might help the window problem. If more people in Madison had this expertise and/or more resources and a community of others with same skill set were available to competent amateurs this might be easier. It should be easier to do the right thing. This seems like a valuable role for the LORC and would further its goals. Building this network would take time but over a generation it would help us save and upgrade more historic structures and details rather than always being stuck between installing a new window which many contractors can do for a reasonable price or hiring one of very few hard to find carpenters who can do it at a higher price. An apprenticeship program maybe?

Hi Katrina,

I believe you are already part of our mass email group, but I wanted to be sure you were aware of the 10/30 LORC meeting agenda—it is nearly identical to the cancelled 9/18 agenda. I'm not sure which item you were interested in, but the committee will be discussing it on 10/30 at 6 pm!

This is a bummer. I am here! I should have checked my email again in the late afternoon. Do you know when it will be rescheduled for?

Thanks,
